EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Assistant Professor of Sociology, University of Maryland. The Department of Sociology at the University of Maryland-College Park invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor (job #104699). Area of specialization is open. To apply, candidates must submit a letter of application indicating fit with the department's strengths; curriculum vitae; a statement of research and teaching interests that highlights substantive and methodological innovations in both research and teaching; a writing sample; and names of three references. Reviews of applications will begin September 30, 2015.

Assistant Professor of Families, Health and Policy, University of Utah. The Department of Family & Consumer Studies at the University of Utah invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor. The successful candidate will have collective expertise in families, health, and policy. Research interests should connect family health issues at any stage of the lifespan to public policy contexts. Examples include, but are not limited to, how maternal employment practices and policies affect children's obesity, how child protective services policies and associated adverse childhood family experiences predict the risk of chronic diseases, how genetic testing policies alter reproductive choices, how public aid policies affect the mental health of recipients and their family members, or how government programs impact options for informal caregiving of ill family members. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in the social sciences with research and teaching emphases in families, health, and policy. Review of applications will begin in September 2015.

Sociologist, RAND Corporation. The RAND Corporation invites applications for junior, mid-career, and senior sociologists interested in a variety of topics, including those related to labor and population, health, education, criminal and civil justice, organizations, public safety, military issues and national security, and environmental and natural resources. RAND is looking for sociologists to work across a number of policy-relevant research areas. These areas cluster around labor, population and demography; health and health care; organizational theory, behavior and culture; criminal and civil justice; public safety; the military and national security; environment and natural resources; education; and, economic sociology. Candidates will have opportunities to receive appointments and teach in the Pardee RAND Graduate School and collaborate with researchers across RAND units. Quantitative and qualitative skill sets are sought. Application deadline: September 1, 2015.

Cornell University

CORNELL POPULATION CENTER

Assistant Professor of Rural Sociology, Penn State University. The College of Agricultural Sciences is filling a tenure-track faculty position in Rural Sociology at the rank of Assistant Professor with a 40% teaching and 60% research appointment. The successful candidate will be expected to develop an internationally recognized research program that draws on her/his expertise in rural communities and livelihoods, including in one or more of the specific areas of community resilience, community sustainability, community development and community entrepreneurship, including farm and other businesses and livelihoods. The candidate will also be expected to teach 3 courses per year in undergraduate or graduate programs. Ph.D. in rural sociology, sociology, demography, community development, or related field preferred. Deadline: September 1, 2015.

Tenure Track Assistant Professor Sociology, University of Michigan. The Department of Sociology will be making several tenure-track appointments at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin September 1, 2016. The positions, which will have a university year appointment, are open with regard to specialization. We are seeking candidates who have demonstrated exceptional promise in sociological research and teaching. Deadline: September 8, 2015.

Assistant Professor of Sociology, University of Toronto. The Department of Sociology, University of Toronto, invites applications for a tenure-stream appointment at the rank Assistant Professor in the area of family and demography or population processes. Candidates with a secondary research interest in an area that complements our departmental strengths in work/stratification/inequality, gender, immigration, or health are strongly preferred. The appointment will begin on July 1, 2016. The successful candidate should have a Ph.D. in Sociology or a closely related field by the date of the appointment or shortly thereafter. Application deadline: September 10, 2015.

Assistant Professor of Sociology, Boston College. The Department of Sociology at Boston College invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position to begin in Fall 2016. We are seeking to hire a qualitative scholar at the Assistant Professor level whose research agenda fits into the social justice theme of our Ph.D. program. We are particularly interested in applicants who work in the areas of critical criminology, immigration, poverty, or social movements, but will consider the applications of candidates working in other substantive areas. Review of applications will begin September 14, 2015.

Postdoctoral Fellow Position in Child and Family Policy and Programs, Northwestern University. The Northwestern University Two-Generation Research Initiative at the Institute for Policy Research is seeking a postdoctoral research scholar with a PhD in psychology, human development, education, economics, sociology, public policy, or social work. The postdoctoral fellow will conduct early childhood education and social policy research involving primary data collection and large-scale secondary data analysis. Research opportunities include use of in-depth qualitative interview and focus group data, video and audio recorded interactions, as well as extensive survey and direct assessment data, with an emphasis on applying research to practice through strong research-program partnerships. Application deadline: September 15, 2015.

Assistant Professor of Health/Health Disparities, Department of Sociology, University of Texas at Austin. The Department of Sociology at The University of Texas at Austin is seeking a faculty member to contribute to its program in health and health disparities. This is a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level to begin Fall 2016. The duties will include teaching on the undergraduate and graduate levels, research, publication, and service to the department, the College of Liberal Arts, and the university. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in hand or expected by August 2016, demonstrate a commitment to teaching excellence, and have a clearly defined research agenda. Review of applications will begin on September 15, 2015.
