

UNDERGRADUATE DEMOGRAPHY MINOR ELECTIVES COURSE LIST 7/8/16Fall 2016 Course Offerings

DSOC/LSP 2200, Sociology of Health and Ethnic Minorities (Parra, P)

DSOC/AMST/EDU/SOC 2710, America's Promise: Social and Political Context of American Education (Sipple, J)

DSOC 3060, Farmworkers: Contemporary Issues and Their Implications (Dudley, M)

PAM 3150, Social Welfare Policy in the United States (Tach, L)

PAM 4100/ECON 3170, Causal Reasoning and Policy Evaluation (Matsudaira, J)

SOC/AMST 3380, Urban Inequality (Bischoff, K)

Course #	Course Name	Instructor	Credits	Description	Last Offered
DSOC/LSP 2200	Sociology of Health and Ethnic Minorities	Parra, P	3	This course discusses the health status of minorities in the United States.	Fall 2016
DSOC/AMST/EDU/SOC 2710	America's Promise: Social and Political Context of American Education	Sipple, J	4	This course is a blending of the Sociology of Education and Public Policy.	Fall 2016
DSOC 3060	Farmworkers: Contemporary Issues and Their Implications	Dudley, M	1	The course examines issues related to primarily unauthorized immigrant workers, in particular immigrant farmworkers and their perceptions on their role in agriculture, their socio-economic interactions, labor concerns,	Fall 2016
DSOC/AIS/SOC 4100	Health and Survival Inequalities	Gonzales, A	3	Introduces the interdisciplinary field of social inequalities in health, with a particular focus on sociological contributions to the area.	Fall 2013

DSOC 4631	Using Statistics to Explore Social Policy and Development	Sipple, J	3	This course is for upper level undergraduate and graduate students with at least one semester of statistics under their belt, but who struggle to use their statistical knowledge in a practical, productive, and valuable way.	Fall 2013
PAM 3150	Social Welfare Policy in the United States	Tach, L	3	This course considers the historical evolution and contemporary challenges of social welfare policy in the US. We first examine social welfare provision from historical and comparative perspectives.	Fall 2016
PAM/DSOC 3620	Population Dynamics and Policy Debates in Comparative Perspective	Hall, M	3	This class explores the causes and consequences of population change, paying particular attention to how population processes interact with the social, economic, and political context in which they play out.	Summer Program in Turin 2016
PAM 3800	Human Sexuality	Parrot, A	4	Provides students with an understanding of the interactions and interrelationships of human behavior that influence sexual development and behavior.	Fall 2015
PAM 4100/ECON 3170	Causal Reasoning and Policy Evaluation	Matsudaira, J	3	Teaches how to evaluate causal claims, e.g., about the effectiveness of government policies.	Fall 2016
PAM/SOC 4160	Ethnography of Poverty and Inequality	Waller, M	3	This course explores poverty and inequality in American society through the lens of ethnographic and other field-based research.	Spring 2016

SOC/DSOC 2090	Social Inequality	Alvarado, S	4	This course reviews contemporary approaches to understanding social inequality and the processes by which it comes to be seen as legitimate, natural, or desirable.	Spring 2016
SOC 2210	Race, Class, and Gender Research in Practice	Weeden, K	4	This course introduces the underlying logic of social scientific research in context of contemporary debates about social inequality: e.g., educational testing and tracking, race-based affirmative action.	Spring 2008
SOC/DSOC 2650; AMST 2655; LSP 2010	Latinos in the United States	Velez, H	3	Exploration and analysis of the Hispanic experience in the United States.	Spring 2016
SOC/AMST 3380	Urban Inequality	Bischoff, K	4	This is a seminar course on urban inequality in the United States.	Fall 2016
SOC 3570	Schooling, Racial Inequality, and Public Policy in America	Alvarado, S	4	After examining alternative explanations for why individuals obtain different amounts and types of educational training, the course focuses on how an individual's family background and race affect his or her trajectory through the educational system.	Fall 2014